Provide input on Pedestrian Network Study

We're looking for your input on the Pedestrian Network Study

The District began a Pedestrian Network Study in 2014 by asking residents to let us know about their experience with walking conditions in West Vancouver. The information collected helped staff identify our community's walking network and determine where improvements are needed. When complete, the study will provide a framework for expanding and improving pedestrian routes to facilitate safe, efficient, and comfortable places to walk for recreation and as a form of transportation.

We want to share the work that's been done so far and get your feedback on it.

Provide your input online by marking a map and providing written suggestions.

The online feedback is open until January 31.
